SOCIAL RESPONSIVENESS AWARD

The Social Responsiveness Award provides an institutional signal to members of the University that social responsiveness is an important priority.

SCHOOLS IMPROVEMENT INITIATIVE

In response to the challenges in South African education, the Schools Improvement Initiative – one of the Vice Chancellor’s four Strategic Initiatives – was launched in 2012. The intention of the initiative is to extend the University of Cape Town’s engagement in schooling with the explicit aim of making a positive impact on the quality of education in the classroom.

Drawing on university-wide resources and expertise, the Schools Improvement Initiative (SII) works in close collaboration with groupings inside and outside the university, in particular the Western Cape Education Department, and currently partners with three primary and two secondary schools in the local community of Khayelitsha.

The SII’s theory of change is based on a whole-school improvement model and includes leadership and management support offered in conjunction with teacher professional development. Using the services of the Schools Development Unit in the School of Education, the initiative offers university courses coupled with school-based mentoring.

The SII is fully committed to interdisciplinary collaboration with faculties and departments across the university, enabling students to undertake their service learning in the partner schools. This includes Occupational Therapy; Speech & Language Therapy; Audiology; Social Work; the Knowledge Co-op; Library & Information Sciences; the School of Architecture; as well as student organisations such as Ubunye, SHAWCO and Students for Law & Social Justice. These collaborations not only directly benefit our partner schools but have also allowed students and academic staff to explore new ways in which community engagement might inform curriculum transformation and social justice.

The SII’s activities over the past six years have contributed towards knowledge production. This includes three symposia, four peer-reviewed journal articles and presentations at three international and four local conferences. One PhD and three master’s students have undertaken their research in the SII partner schools. Furthermore, a three-year NRF Community Engagement Grant awarded in 2015 resulted in a multi-authored book to be published by the HSRC Press later in 2018. This publication showcases the insights gained on community engagement and interdisciplinary collaboration in the SII.

A further key aspect of the Initiative is 100UP. This university access programme has had a significant impact on UCT enrolments from both Khayelitsha and the neighbouring community of Mitchells Plain.

Since the first group of Grade 10s were recruited in 2011, over 1000 learners have participated in the programme, and a measure of its success is that of its 963 matriculants who obtained B-Degree passes, 851 (or 88%) have gone on to study at university, 446 at UCT. This year sees 63 first-year students drawn from 19 out of the 20 secondary schools in Khayelitsha registered at UCT – an almost three-fold increase in enrolments from before 100UP was put into place.

Through the multidimensional nature of its work, the SII fosters partnerships, harnesses resources, improves schools and crucially, opens the doors of higher learning – thus embodying UCT’s commitment to social responsiveness. It is for these reasons that the SII has been chosen as a worthy recipient of the 2017 Social Responsiveness Award.

HONORARY DEGREE

Brian Percival O’Connell

DEd (honoris causa)

Brian O’Connell qualified as a teacher in 1969 and graduated from Columbia with an MA in 1984 and an MEd in 1985. He returned to South Africa to lecture at the University of the Western Cape (UWC), from where he served at the Athlone College in Paarl, the Peninsula Technikon, and headed the Western Cape Provincial Education Department. In 2001 he returned as Vice-Chancellor of UWC, a position he held until his retirement in 2014.

Professor O’Connell’s broad and extensive experience in education enabled him to steer UWC into a position of strength during a tumultuous time in its history. In 2001 the University faced serious financial challenges and the possibility of a merger. His vision was encapsulated in his belief in the pivotal role UWC could play as a “beacon of light and source of hope and confidence”. He attracted to it young intellectual leaders and engendered a commitment to excellence at every level in the institution. When he retired in 2014 the University of the Western Cape had established itself as a leading research university. A defining feature of UWC under his leadership was that it was a place of ‘becoming’ where transformation of the self, and thereby the transformation of society, was possible. His leadership enabled individuals and the institution to face their history and through learning and dignity, transcend the identities cast for them by apartheid.

In 2017 he was awarded the NRF Lifetime Achievement Award. This accolade is “awarded to individuals considered to have made extraordinary contributions, of international standard and impact, to the development of science in and for South Africa over an extended period of time. An additional consideration is the manner in which their work has touched and shaped the lives and views of many South Africans.”

Brian O’Connell has lived a life committed to improving the lives of the oppressed and disadvantaged peoples of South Africa. He has made a direct, practical impact on the lives of countless people. He has been a model public servant, a visionary leader in education generally but particularly as a Vice-Chancellor at the University of the Western Cape.

Welcome, Wamkelekile, Welkom – today is not the end of your relationship with the university but the beginning of a new phase in your continuing relationship with UCT, one that you share with the UCT community of over 100 000 alumni.

Diverse as this community is, the shared experiences of a critical academic ethos and a spectacular campus make for a strong network that has a wide footprint, not only in South Africa, but across the continent and the globe.

We set a great store by our links with our alumni, and indeed the links alumni have with each other. We promise that we will be in touch, and ask you in turn to let us know not only your current contact details but also, from time to time, something of your lives and where you are in your careers.

*Updates can be done on the web – <http://www.uct.ac.za/dad/alumni/update/>
- or by writing to the Alumni Office, UCT, PB X3 Rondebosch 7701 or by contacting us on (27) (21) 650 3746.*

Your alma mater looks forward to welcoming you back, whether to a public lecture, a leadership forum, your class reunion, or just an informal call!
